UniBar House Policy

Everyone has the right to feel safe at UniBar. We have zero tolerance for violence, sexual harassment or any other harassment. We take all reports seriously, including reports of behaviour targeting women or anyone because of their gender. This policy applies to everyone at UniBar and its events, including in queues and entry areas.

Behaviour we will act on

- Violence, threats, intimidation, fighting or aggressive behaviour.
- Sexual assault, unwanted touching, sexual comments or gestures, and persistent advances.
- Stalking, discriminatory abuse, sexist slurs or harassment of any kind.
- Drink spiking or tampering with anyone's food or drink.

Respect people's boundaries. Get consent before sexual contact and stop immediately if someone withdraws it.

How to get help

Tell any staff member, security officer or the duty manager if you experience or witness this behaviour, or suspect drink spiking. You can ask to speak privately, bring someone you trust or report on someone else's behalf.

In an emergency Call Triple Zero (000) if someone is in immediate danger or needs urgent medical help. On campus, also alert UOW Security on 02 4221 4900 or use the SafeZone app.

After the event Use the feedback form at unibar.uow.edu.au/contact-us. You can report anonymously.

How UniBar will respond

Staff will help you get to a safer place and arrange first aid or security support as needed. We will handle reports discreetly and share information as needed for safety, follow-up or legal obligations.

UniBar may refuse entry, remove anyone who breaches this policy or bar them from future events. We may contact police where warranted. Retaliation against anyone who reports an incident or helps someone get support is also a breach of this policy.

Drink Safe at UniBar

Staff can help if you suspect drink spiking. Drink covers are available on request. Responsibility always lies with the person who spikes the drink.
